"Little Boy" Defeated Again.

The Methodist Sunday School boys went down in defeat before the A. R. P.'s. In the game last Friday, the score being 13 to 6.

In the third inning the A. R. P.'s tied and kept the score keeper busy marking up runs. When the inning was over a tabulation showed that 10 men had crossed the home plate in the one inning.

Lynn, twirling for the Methodists was relieved by Tom Brice, who with the assistance of his comrades held the A. R. P.'s down to one run in the seventh and two in the eighth. While it is true that the A. R. P.'s were hitting Lynn heavy in the eighth they have been up against a better support and if he had in all probability the score would have been quite different.

The Methodist percentage now stands around 200 and while they foot the league it must be stated in their behalf that they have evidently the highest team in the league. In fact the "little boys" have been playing very creditable ball when one considers the "heavy weight" they have been up against. And too, they were considerably crippled Friday, several of their best players being out of the game. The score by innings was as follows:

A. R. P.'s 0 0 10 0 0 12 0 13
Meth. 1 0 1 0 0 0 2 2 6

IN MEMORIAM OF IKE BROOM.

Gone But Not Forgotten.

Oh, call it not death—it is life begun. For the waters are passed the home is won.

The ransomed spirit has reached the shore Where they weep and suffer and sin no more.

He is safe in his Father's house above In the place prepared by his Father's love.

To depart from a world of sin and strife, And to be with Jesus—yes, this is life.

Oh, call it not death—it is a glorious life. Yes, faith the spirit, for all such are blest.

They rest from their labors; they're free. The goal is attained, the weary race run.

The battle is fought, the struggle is over. The crown now replaced, the cross he bore.

The pilgrimage path shall no more be trod. A rest remains for the child of God.

Oh, call it not death—it is true indeed. The soul from the shackles of earth is freed.

Tis true that dissolves is the house of clay. And the spirit—unchained—hath wings to fly away.

Tis true too, the loved one, hath gone before. The home is darkened that knows him no more.

He chides not our grief, for Jesus wept. O'er the grave where his friend lay—Lazarus—

But he is not dead, a few short days he'll again

Those who loved him shall meet him in glory to part no more. What a blessed hope, to the Christ shall appear.

For the restitution of all things here. Then if not till then, you will see him again.

When brought by the Lord with his glorious train. Those sleeping in Jesus—shall be restored. And there shall ever be with their Lord.

He is not dead but only asleep. And the precious dust the Lord doth keep.

He will wake again and how satisfied With the likeness of Him, for him died.

As he rose again, he shall also rise. From the quiet bed where he now safely lies.

Then cheer our fond hearts and let us not weep. For happy are they who in Jesus sleep.

May the Lord help us in those dark hours in the loss of our precious son.

A loving mother and father, E. F. and J. W. Broom. Great Falls, S. C., June 23, 1921.

If there are any disabled ex-service men in Chester county who desire vocational training they should file their applications on or before December 15th, 1922.

Under an act passed by Congress men who were injured during the World War are entitled to the learning of a trade at the expense of the government and if there are any in Chester county who were disabled they should at least investigate the provisions of the act. Already a number of young men in Chester county are taking vocational training.

Those interested in the matter should write Mr. S. C. Groeschel, supervisor federal board for vocational education, 907 Loan and Exchange Bank building, Columbia, who will be glad to handle the matter. Mr. Groeschel is a former Chester boy.

THE PERVERSITY OF COTTON.

Press reports tell of the financing on a large scale of the Federal export corporation at New Orleans, by the War Finance Corporation, at the same time giving indication of further aid for the purpose from the source that should enable the New Orleans concern to handle almost the entire Southern export situation, if need be. Coincident comes information of a reduction in the English banking rate and large Liverpool buying. All of these factors should have operated to the lifting of prices in the cotton market and development of a demand aid yet, the market appears to have been entirely unresponsive. The contraries in the course of cotton this year now seems to be a puzzle even to the bulls. Conditions existing yesterday, under normal operation of the trade, should have boosted prices, yet they appear to be a puzzle even to the bulls. This is no understanding the ways of cotton since the war. —Charlotte Observer.

THE PERIOD

of the world's history through which we are at present passing may fitly be termed the age of competition, and it is an indisputable fact that all the money made in business now-a-days is by strictly buying "Job Lot" from Auction for cash and selling them in the same way. —Gauls Goods on regular terms at regular prices will not meet such less stand the fierce and cruel strain of the unanswerable arguments that fall untouched in fabric from the Auction block with the price "split in Two." The abuse of the privilege of buying overbids is still grinding into fine powder some of the harvest in brains and the strongest in backbone.

After these things the place it is not long before one can see the "Job Lot" of the auction and hear the melancholy song of the Auctioneer. From quarters like these we are gathering mercantile ammunition with which we expect to silence competition in whatever shape. Amidst the glitter and glare reflected here and there by ostentatious, onward sweep; amidst the tumbling and crumbling of petty worlds. We want you to listen for the musical, metallic ring of the American Dollar. For once in our short but turbulent history we have room to fire with perfect precision and to double and treble our present dimensions of force. Opportunity, aggressive and practical reality. The "Credit Ledger" is doomed. Beneath its fatal folds have been crushed some of the grandest ambitions that ever fired the immortal soul. Yes, we are fighting the "Credit Ledger." When we were Lilliputs we faced and fought this "Mercantile God" and it needs now only the Rock Bottom Values of the Auctioneer People to silence his presumption forever.

You are cordially invited to come and watch the daily, deadly grapple between King Credit and his Master, Cash!

July 11th, Ga., July 22.—Tomatoes have been moving from Jones county for the past week in car lots. D. F. Monsee and others shipped several cars last week and more will follow this week. Watermelons will begin to move in a few days. About 75 to 100 cars will leave the county within the next 30 days. Gray, Morton, James, Haddock, Griswoldville, and Mountain Springs will be the main loading points.

The farmers are hoping to get good price for their tomatoes and watermelons, as Mr. Boll Weevil has about captured this year's cotton crop. It is estimated that there will not be over 300 bales made in the county this year.

Counsel for Illinois Executive Say Constitution Makes Him Immune.
Lieutenant Governor's Course Not Defined—Banker, Indicted With Officials, Makes Bond.

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—Counsel for Gov. Small, appearing as "friends of the court," will present arguments to Judge E. S. Smith tomorrow that the governor, as the State's chief executive, need not submit to arrest for embezzlement or conspiracy to defraud the State, as charged in indictments returned yesterday against him, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, and Vernon S. Curtis, Grant Park, Ill., banker.

State's Attorney Mortimer, it is reported, will be on hand to contend that the governor's position does not make him immune from arrest and that warrants issued against Small should be served.

Mr. Curtis' bonds, reduced from $100,000 to $50,000, were arranged today.

They were the most important developments of the 24 hours succeeding the indictment of Small, Steing and Curtis for alleged manipulation of State-treasury funds which, according to the charges, involved close to $4,000,000 used by the trio for private gain.

The political air of the capitol today was agitated by arguments over possibilities. These ranged from the questions to who would become governor of the State in the event of Small's conviction, to the possibility of the national guard being mustered to help Sheriff Mester from serving warrants on the governor.

Gov. Small was silent throughout the day which was spent in conferences with his attorneys, cabinet members and close political friends.

"Black-Draught is, in my opinion, the best liver medicine on the market," states Mrs. R. H. Whitehead, of Keota, Okla. She continues: "I had a pain in my chest after eating—night, uncomfortable feeling—and this was very disagreeable and brought on a headache. I was cramped and knew it was indigestion and inactive liver. I began the use of Black-Draught, night and morning, and it sure is splendid and certainly gives relief."

For over seventy years this purely vegetable preparation has been found beneficial by thousands of persons suffering from the effects of a low, acid, or slow-moving bile, or of low action in the stomach, indigestion, biliousness, colic, coated tongue, dizziness, constipation, bilious headache, sleeplessness, nervousness, and a lack of energy, pain in the back, puffiness under the eyes—any or all of these symptoms often indicate that there is something the matter with your liver. You can't be too careful about the medicine you take. Be sure that the name of Ford's Black-Draught is on the package. At all drugists.

The price of cotton, received by farmers, has varied enormously since the end of the long period of very low prices about 25 years ago. The records of the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, show 4.6 cents per pound of lint in 1894 and it was as low as 6.7 cents in 1900, or 1901, or 1902. In the cotton price history, however, the price rose to 40.5 cents, and remained substantially at this higher level or above. In the first year of the World War, 1914, cotton averaged 27 cents, but it rose to 11.3 cents the next year, to 19.5 cents in 1916, to 27.7 cents in 1917, and to 35.6 cents in 1919. The drop to 14 cents a pound in 1920, or 1921, or 1922, was due to the fact that old traders to the quick-

New York, July 22.—Although the motion pictures of prize fights are prohibited by federal statute from being shown in any except that in which the fight was held, F. C. Qumby announced today that the reproduction of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in a motion picture is being contested would be shown in a local theater on Saturday.

Mr. Qumby's attorneys are said to have obtained from Attorney General Daugherty a ruling that the Dempsey-Carpentier bout was a boxing match, not a prize fight, and that it could be shown in pictures from any state under the law, pictures of one state to another for public exhibition. Private showings of the pictures are reported to have been held in Washington, where they were viewed by several members of congress, and at various New York hospitals, where they were shown for the benefit of convalescent soldiers.

"From day to time there come to me letters the burden of which is strikingly similar. Written by people on most diverse walks of life, these letters say in effect:

"It is hard for me to concentrate on my work. My mind continually flies to other things. I am no better at work than at work.

"For then I feel strangely restless and uneasy. I cannot settle down to anything, and, though I find plenty of ways for amusing myself, nothing gives me any real pleasure. What is wrong?"

In the lack of personal acquaintance with the writers of such letters it is impossible to say categorically what is wrong. The restless man complained of may spring from any one of numerous causes, including conditions of bodily disorder calling for medical diagnosis and treatment. Yet this much may be said, that in almost cases it is not the body that is at fault, but the mind. The restless, as a class, are people who have not taken sufficient pains to acquire a sound philosophy of life, or at all events have failed to develop their minds, as all might and should.

For your mere pleasure-seeker is essentially selfish. And selfishness is only because it involves a negation of the altruistic instinct, carries with it a plenty of chronic dissatisfaction with life.

Only those who have a genuine enthusiasm for their work—who recognize the value of that work to society and rejoice in it as a means of enabling them to render useful ser-

When at work, but even they may feel "strangely restless and uneasy" outside of working hours if they have been neglected, as countless numbers have, to fit themselves by mental training for the proper enjoyment of leisure.

Richard Duffy, in his admirable introduction to Jules Payot's "Will Power and Work," ~~states the case~~ clearly when he remarks:

"Many pay scrupulous attention to the care and development of their physical being and never pause to reflect that their intellectual constitution also requires training.

They fail to realize, whether they are financially prosperous or able only just to get along, that their mind is the mainspring of their existence."

Neglect to train and cultivate the mind—through developing a love of reading and study, interest in nature, in art, music, etc.—necessarily means some degree of mental inadequacy. In most cases it means a deplorable dependence on external sources of amusement, entertainment, and recreation.

But such sources are not always available. And even when they are available they fall soon or late. Restlessness follows, the inevitable produce of failure to obey nature's law that the mind must be as carefully nurtured as the body.

Learn to develop and use your mind, learn to love your work, learn to think more of others' good than of your own—this is really the best advice that can be given to the restless whose restlessness is without physical cause.

NORTH CHARLESTON, S. C.

Number of people have given County Treasurer Harry E. Neil bad checks in payment of taxes and the matter has grown to the point where it is causing the treasurer considerable worry and annoyance.

No less than six checks, each bearing the statement, "insufficient funds," were returned to the treasurer last Wednesday by a York county bank and information is that hardly a day passes without one or more checks being returned.

"This condition is growing steadily worse," said the treasurer, "and something is going to have to be done about it. We can't tolerate any thing like that.

"Some tax payers come here and give checks in payment of taxes. Then they are turned down by the bank on which they are issued. I have my stenographer sit down and write them stating that the check has been turned down and asking them to please come and make the matter right. Many times I get no replies to my letters.

"Some times they reply requesting that the check be presented to the bank the second time. I comply with the request only to have the check returned again with a second "insufficient funds" returned."—Yorkville Enquirer.
